Commercial Structure - 45 Hanson Street - c. 1890 - Late 19th Century Vernacular: 2-story, 2-bay vernacular Victorian Commercial block, wood frame with simple trim. Circa 1920's Colonial Revival storefront attached to facade is now dominant. (51/215).

42.

120-384

Tony's Bicycle Shop - 41 Hanson Street - c. 1870 - Italianate: 2-story, 4-bay wide Italianate commercial block with bracketed cornice at roofline. Rectangular windows on upper story set in plain enframements. Walls have asphalt shingles. (51/216).

43.

120-385

The Masonic Temple - 31 Hanson Street - c. 1911 - NeoClassic: 3-story, 5 x 7 bay brick block with NeoClassic ornament. Facade is distinguished by five stone pilasters spanning second and third stories. Pilasters have Scamozzi capitals and support stone entablature with denticular cornice. A brick parapet articulates roofline. Other features include stone lintels over paired windows in central bays, keystones and corner blocks over windows in side bays. Windows have 1/1 sash. The entablature and cornice, and a simpler architrave band above storefront level both continue along east elevation. Windows on east elevation have splayed lintels with keystone motif. Storefronts on facade remain unaltered. The Masonic Temple was constructed to house the Masonic Hall in 1911. (51/199).

44.

120-386

The Farrington Block - 19 Hanson Street - c. 1885 - Italianate: 3-story, 6-bay wide wooden commercial block. Intact upper facade features prominent bracketed cornice, molded segmental-arched window surrounds with keystones. Farrington Block nameplate is centered below cornice. Corners are articulated by notched pilaster strips. Storefronts have been altered. The building has always been a furniture store. (51/200).

45.

120-387

Colby's Oil Place - 19 Hanson Street - c. 1960: 1-story cinder block commercial building with Mansard-roof motif spanning facade. Non-contributor. (51/201). DEMOLISHED 46.

120-388

Commercial Structure - 15 Hanson Street - c. 1880 - Stick Style: Simply ornamented 3-story commercial building with boomtown facade. A paneled architrave and projecting cornice ornament the roofline, architrave band and cornice span facade above second story windows. Corners are marked by plain corner boards. Only example of boomtown style in district. (51/202).
